

Jonathan Horner

July 27, 1947 - October 29, 2021

No obituary found for this tribute.

Tribute Wall

“ Jonathan Horner

January 29, 2023 at 08:49 AM

BL

“ I met Jonathan in 2006 both of us in the pursuit of higher fidelity stereo playback, neighbors in Arizona, brothers in arms on the audio front. Along the way our friendship breached every possible discipline, no subject was Tabu, always the free thinker an innovator.

We spent hundreds of man hours pursuing what Jonathan called nature sound ... no rock was left unturned! By sheer tenacity we stumbled upon the recipe to making stereo playback truly lifelike, we called it K2 after the most difficult remote mountain climb on the planet. Finally we were inside the 3D soundstage, living breathing floating entity's of sound passing though walls like ghosts, it was as if the music was reality and the house an audio gear the illusion. Unfortunately this project took reams of pure silver wire, unobtainium vacuum tubes, cutting edge computer technology, and thousands of dollars that neither could sustain during the Great Recession of 2008. Jonathan moved to Twisp, WA with Kody the Great Husky, my wife and I moved to Kona, HI, all of us in pursuit of a simpler lifestyle closer to nature. (Such is the duality of life)

For the next 10 years we continued our friendship and research via telephone and internet from our independent audio labs. The goal to achieve K2 at a much lower price point. Ironically just as we conclude our research finding cutting edge digital clocks, GaNFET's and simplicity to be the secret to K2 Audio, Jonathan is off pursuing higher planes of existence. (Firm Roman Handshake)

I can't wait to hear about your latest discovery's ... see you soon my friend.

Bill Allen Luebke

Bill Allen Luebke - November 13, 2021 at 03:37 PM