“ There are too many memories to share when you think of John Burke. What a kind and good man. To our family in Lexington, we consider him a hero. We loved his stories of his hiking we loved the pictures he shared in the stories. I told him once he needed to write a book. we have kept all of those pictures that he sent in email along with the detailed stories of how he would hike and climb to get just the right picture. We love the stories he told about his Kentucky home and his Kentucky family that he loved so much. He most was proud of his daughters his wife and his grandchildren we heard about their adventures over and over. The last time we saw John was at his brother Frank's memorial and in true fashion he continued to tell stories upon stories about family history. His mind was just so incredibly sharp. I cherish that last day that we saw him and talked about family history he told stories and we just enjoyed him as we always had. We will surly miss you John Burke!!! We love you dearly.
